

CHRGJ's Transitional Justice Series presents:

Amnesty for Truth:

A Critical Assessment of the South African Experience

Please join CHRGJ in welcoming Gilbert Marcus, as he discusses two of the most-high profile murder cases in which amnesty was awarded by the South African Truth Commission. As one of the country's most respected advocates, he has represented clients in some of the country's seminal political trials under apartheid, as well as in path-breaking Constitutional Court cases. He will assess the merits and consequences of granting amnesty for political crimes, more than a decade after the Truth Commission completed its work. As one of South Africa's most high-profile lawyers, Gilbert Marcus has a unique insight into the impact of the amnesty on the birth of the new South Africa and on the rule of law ever since.
