

“Managing Identity Conflicts in Africa”
An Evening with the Honorable Francis M. Deng

What role does identity play in fostering genocide and other mass atrocities? Can identity be managed to prevent or resolve conflict? Why does genocide often provoke denial both among perpetrators and those who are capable of stopping the violence and what role does identity play in that denial?

Please join CHR&GJ and the African Law Association in welcoming Francis Deng as he addresses these and other questions, drawing on a lifetime’s worth of prolific scholarship on human rights, as well as his experiences as UN Special Adviser on the Prevention of Genocide.

Welcome: African Law Association, NYU School of Law
