Strategies for Change in Haiti: Tackling the Challenges of Gender Based Violence in Post-earthquake Haiti

Please join CHR&GJ in a multi-disciplinary panel discussion about gender based violence in Haiti as the country works to rebuild itself after the devastating earthquake of January 2010. Panelists will discuss the legal obstacles to documenting and prosecuting gender-based violence ("GBV"), the use of new media tools in combating and responding to the incidence of GBV, the role of the Haitian Diaspora in creating a new future for Haitian women, and work being done by grass-roots organizations on the ground who are mobilizing against violence and injustice.

Panelists:

Brian Concannon, Director, Institute for Justice and Democracy in Haiti (IJDH)

Eramithe Delva, Founding member of KOFVIV (Komisyon Fanm Viktim pou Viktim, The Commission of Women Victims for Victims)

Emily Jacobi, Co-director of Digital Democracy

Margaret Satterthwaite, Faculty Director, CHR&GJ; Assistant Professor of Clinical Law of the Global Justice Clinic, NYU School of Law

Margarette Tropnas, Executive Director, Dwa Fanm
